

Love Yourself!

By Trevor Justice

Lovers come and go like seasons.
People change and then move on.
But there's an angel in the cold winter night
Who will hold you close `til dawn.

Right inside you is this angel
who you can count on `til the end
When you need a great believer
or a true devoted friend
Love yourself

Why keep on struggling for perfection?
You'll spend a lifetime... clutching straws.
Give yourself loving and affection.
Forgive your weakness... forgive your flaws

(LOVE YOURSELF)

(LOVE YOURSELF)

When you accept your limitations.
And finally realize you're a prize
You won't need others' validation
Won't need a perfect disguise.

(LOVE YOURSELF)

(LOVE YOURSELF)

When you love yourself, you can conquer loneliness
Love yourself, break free of old self doubt
Love yourself, even lift up others
When you shine, shine, shine from the inside out

Marriage used to last a lifetime.
Now you never really know.
Being married, you can give all you have
And still end up on your own.

But you've got one friend who's forever.
Who'll always look at you with pride.
You're gonna walk tall with a gleam in your eye
When your love comes from inside.

Why look around you for approval?
Why let others... be your judge?
Lift yourself up with your own scruples.
Your inner champion will never budge.

Cutting remarks will never phase you.
You'll laugh it off when people criticize.
You won't need someone else to praise you
When you know you are a prize.

When you love yourself, you can conquer loneliness.
Love yourself, break free of old self doubt.
Love yourself, even lift up others
When you shine, shine, shine from the inside out.
